The "letters" (or notes) do not need "decrypting" they need "de-crazy-ed."

Background Info #1

A close relative of mine was described by the Psycho-Doctors as "paranoid, delusional, so many personalities there is no textbook diagnosis for it." This was in the 1980s and the whole "multiple personality disorder" thing was not popular amongst the electroshock-them-well (or feed them lithium and gin) PhD set. This relative was crazy – but extremely intelligent: had their own PhD in psychology; had worked for the Army treating "delayed battle stress syndrome" (what we call PTSD these days); spoke and literate in at least 4 languages (that I know of)... and, wrote psycho-babble letters and notes on scraps of paper like Mr. McCormick's. This relative also "read the hidden messages" delivered from their sinus into their Kleenex like fortune-tellers read tea leaves. (I can't read boogers or tea leaves, but I can read Mr. McCormick's loony-rant.)

Background Info #2

Here, in Dunn, for about 15 years we had a homeless lady that would stand on the street corners and cuss at her "imaginary friends." Her name is/was Malinda (or Belinda). In 2004, a friend of mine moved his computer business downtown. Malinda/Belinda left him a hand scribbled note (far worse than McCormick's notes) that we transcribed as:

We have scan(s) of it somewhere – I can't find them right now.

Some "De-Psycho-Filter" Codex

The FBI article said that Mr. McCormick had "used" this code since childhood. So, read it "child-like" instead of 200-I.Q. "Signals and Intelligence." Many of the comments found on the web (even one day after FBI publication/request) stated "...I tried to just read it." They were on the right track. The "confusion" starts when "we" assume because of all those repeat characters and "phrases" some sort of cryptology or cryptography (or autism/savant-like self-coding/decoding, compression, algorithms, and all the other "it has to be complex!") notions.

There may be some letter-in-letter “Omega-Code” hidden message in the .jpg rendition. That is far beyond my “crypto” reasoning. (Re-compress into a more lossy format and does the code still exist, fractal style? Then it’s not there.)

McCormick’s prolific use of “SE”: it indicates plural (s – like persons); it indicates possessive (’s – like Man’s); it is often misused (vernacular – “RSE” seems to mean to McCormick “ares” as in “we ares the world, we ares the children”).

McCormick’s “n” (prolific again): seems like everyone (me included) misdiagnosed it, especially with the many “NCBEs” throughout both. I even looked up NCBE found a bunch of “Dolly the Sheep Cloning” information from the couple of years before his death – and tried to overcomplicate both letters into some psychotic-paranoid-cloning fear of McCormick’s. Paying closer attention I realized that it is not an “n” but a Greek “mu” (or “screwy” ohm). It appears (to me) to be a delimiter or spacer. So, “NCBE” is actually “(delimiter)CBE” and “CBE” seems to stand for (next):

McCormick’s “CBE”: “See-Be”? (See the signs, BE a super-person?) “Seeing-Being”? (After “seeing” you complete your “being?”) Maybe just “BE” (like “Let it be” or “Be good” or “it is”).

McCormick’s “TE” and “DE”: The. (Like the net-kids use “teh” these days.) Occasionally it (“DE”) appears to be a “MJ and LB (they’re 5-1/2)” double-ed. They say: “We did-ed it!”

McCormick’s “WLD”: World (sometimes “would” maybe, but read the “My Stro” above, it doesn’t have to make sense, just be decoded).

McCormick’s “TF”: “if” (tiff? – a lot of his scrib-phone-listics take some “playing with in your mouth” before you figure them out; like ARSE is not a buttocks, it is “are’s” discussed above.)

There is much I still have not (bothered to) work(ed) out. It “kind of” gives me a headache – like reading Kaczynski’s Manifesto full of all those “we-s” and “us-s” and whatever nutcase that was “back in the day” that called women “wemens.”

I started with the (P1) note because the bottom “signature sentence” or “p.s.” or “closing” just reads in plain psychotic-English:

“If a mans/persons soul ares loose to the world would he be?”

4.28.2011 = adding links to the other two – shrunk the “My Stro” note to 9 to make space. Online (pdf) only. 4.29.2011 added the final with pamphlet info.

The "XL" or "X<" appears on both notes and seems to mean something – I haven't figured out what.

I am not looking (not even for one second) at that second page today, "we's are tries agains is tomorrows castles muCBE."

And if, like some "comments" question, this is an F.B.I. "April Fool's Joke" – well you FBIs better hope you "see the cure for the burning" because you gave me a headache. Law-of-2s... lzh compression...?!?
